

EVENT COMPLETION REPORT

International AIDS Day

Date: 3rd December 2024

Time: 12:00 PM onwards

Venue: Classroom-1, 1st floor, Venkateshwar Institute of Pharmacy

Organised by: Venkateshwar Institute of Pharmacy

1. Introduction

World AIDS Day is observed every year on 1st December to raise global awareness about HIV/AIDS, support individuals living with HIV, and remember those who have lost their lives to the disease. Venkateshwar Institute of Pharmacy observed International AIDS Day on 3rd December 2024 as a structured awareness initiative aimed at promoting knowledge, sensitivity, and responsible behaviour regarding HIV/AIDS prevention and management. The programme was organized in alignment with global efforts to combat HIV/AIDS through education, awareness, and community engagement.

HIV/AIDS continues to be a major public health concern, not only due to its medical implications but also because of the social stigma and discrimination associated with it. Educational institutions play a critical role in addressing these challenges by fostering awareness, promoting scientific understanding, and encouraging empathetic attitudes among youth.

The event was conceptualized with the objective of enhancing students' understanding of transmission modes, preventive strategies, early diagnosis, and available treatment options, while simultaneously addressing misconceptions and stigma associated with HIV-positive individuals.

Through expert interaction, audio-visual learning, and student engagement, the programme created a platform for informed discussion and awareness. The initiative also aimed to strengthen students' role as responsible healthcare contributors and awareness ambassadors in society.

2. Objectives

- To create awareness about HIV/AIDS transmission, prevention, and treatment
- To reduce stigma and discrimination associated with HIV-positive individuals
- To promote responsible behaviour and early testing practices
- To encourage empathy and social inclusion for People Living with HIV
- To align student learning with public health awareness initiatives

3. Event Highlights

- The programme commenced with a welcome address by Dr. Khemchand Gupta, Principal, who emphasized the importance of awareness, early diagnosis, and education in reducing new HIV infections.
- Dr. Jyoti Tomar, Associate Professor (Microbiology), PIMS, delivered an expert session focusing on:
 - Medical aspects of HIV/AIDS
 - Psychological and social challenges faced by PLHIV
 - Importance of reducing stigma and promoting inclusion

- An educational video presentation was screened providing detailed insights into HIV transmission, prevention strategies, and global impact.
- Students from multiple semesters actively attended and participated in discussions, indicating cross-level academic engagement.
- Pre-event communication ensured effective outreach and participation.

4. Outcome

The programme witnessed active participation from 131 students and faculty members, indicating strong engagement in public health awareness activities.

The event achieved its intended objectives through measurable academic and behavioural outcomes. Participants developed a clearer understanding of HIV/AIDS symptoms, transmission pathways, preventive measures, and treatment options, supported by expert lectures and audio-visual learning tools.

One of the key impacts of the programme was sensitization of students toward stigma reduction. The discussions and expert insights helped address misconceptions and fostered a more empathetic and informed perspective toward individuals living with HIV/AIDS.

The programme also enhanced student engagement and participation, as evidenced by active involvement during sessions and discussions. It contributed to strengthening awareness regarding responsible health behaviour, early diagnosis, and preventive practices.

Additionally, the event reinforced the institution's commitment to public health awareness and social responsibility, aligning academic learning with real-world healthcare challenges. Overall, the programme successfully integrated knowledge dissemination with value-based education and social impact.

5. Conclusion

The International AIDS Day awareness programme was successfully conducted and effectively fulfilled its objective of promoting knowledge, awareness, and social sensitivity regarding HIV/AIDS. The combination of expert lectures, audio-visual tools, and student engagement ensured that the programme delivered both academic and social value.

The event reinforced the importance of education as a tool for prevention, highlighting that awareness and responsible behaviour are critical in controlling the spread of HIV/AIDS. It also emphasized the need to eliminate stigma and create an inclusive environment for individuals living with the condition.

From an institutional perspective, the programme demonstrated the effective integration of public health awareness initiatives with academic learning, contributing to holistic student development. It encouraged students to act as informed individuals and responsible contributors to society.

The success of the programme reflects the institute's commitment to community-oriented education, healthcare awareness, and value-based learning practices, and sets a strong foundation for similar initiatives in the future.
