

EVENT COMPLETION REPORT

Event Name: CPR Awareness Program (National Emergency Life Support)

Date: 16th Oct 2025

Time: 11:00 AM onwards

Venue: Advance Skill Lab Venkateshwar College of Nursing, Udaipur

Organized by: Venkateshwar College of Nursing, Umarda, Udaipur

1. Introduction

The program was executed as part of the broader "CPR Awareness Program" initiative on 16th Oct, 2025. A crucial initial step involved securing formal permission from the Principal Sir for the event. Following authorization, detailed planning was undertaken, including scheduling the Advance Skill Lab and coordinating the faculty instructors. The program was scheduled to begin promptly at 11:00 AM.

2. Program Objectives

The primary objectives of the CPR Awareness Program were to:

- Create Awareness: Raise awareness among nursing students about the critical nature of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) in emergency life support.
- Impart Theoretical Knowledge: Provide comprehensive instruction on the latest guidelines, indications, and systematic procedure for performing effective CPR.
- Develop Practical Skills: Enable every student to perform hands-on practice using the CPR simulator and gain confidence in life-saving maneuvers.
- Ensure Readiness: Prepare all participating students to effectively respond to cardiac and respiratory emergencies in both clinical and community settings.

3. Participants

A total of all students from the following batches participated in the program to ensure comprehensive coverage across different academic years:

- BSc Nursing 1st Semester
- BSc Nursing 2nd Semester
- BSc Nursing 4th Semester
- GNM 1st Year

4. Highlights

The program was executed using a two-pronged approach-theoretical instruction followed by mandatory practical training.

- Theory Class (11:00 AM onwards): The session commenced with a dedicated theory class on the principles and procedures of CPR, which was conducted by Dr. Archala Khemnar. This lecture provided the foundational knowledge required for the practical session.

- Grouping and Practical Session: To facilitate personalized attention and hands-on opportunity for every student, the large body of students was divided into smaller groups. This grouping ensured a smooth and well-managed flow through the practical station. The practical skill training was led by the instructional team, specifically including Mr. Prakash Salvi, Mrs. Maheshwari Patel, Mr. Jitendra Kumar, Mr. Sonu Kher, and Mr. Akshat Sharma.
- Advanced Lab Practice: Following the theory class, all student groups transitioned to the Advance Skill Lab. Under the guidance of the faculty team, each student performed mandatory practical training on the CPR simulator. This hands-on practice was essential for skill mastery and receiving immediate feedback
- Conclusion of Session: Once all students had successfully completed their practical training and received necessary instruction and feedback, they were directed to return to their respective classrooms to resume their scheduled academic activities.

5. Conclusion & Outcomes

The CPR Awareness Program was a resounding success, meeting all stated objectives by providing essential theoretical and practical skills to the participating nursing students. The coordinated effort of the instructional team and the efficient use of the Advance Skill Lab and simulators maximized the learning outcome within the allotted time. It is recommended that such hands-on skill development programs be conducted routinely to maintain high levels of student proficiency in emergency care.
